BSL rings in the New Year with Oyster Drop

BY GEOFF BELCHER

The annual New Year's Eve Oyster drop took place last Friday evening in downtown Bay St. Louis.

People crowded shoulder-to-shoulder in the 100 and 200 blocks of North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis Friday night for the second-ever New Year's Eve Oyster Drop.

"It was more successful than (the first Oyster Drop) in 2020," event organizer Jim MacPhaille said. "It was great. The Silver Slipper gave us their stage, King Waste helped us with everything, with Josh DeSalvo and Mike Favre doing the fireworks and everybody had a great time."

"I think it was fantastic. I want to do it every year."

MacPhaille created the first event to ring in the New Year for 2020, but the New Year's 2021 event had to be canceled due to the COVID

review

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

While 2022 is quite literally off to a "cool" start here in Hancock County, we here at the Sea Coast Echo wanted to take a quick look back at the year before.

Here are the top Sea Coast Echo stories by month from 2021:

IN JANUARY:

Waveland's oldest eatery — J's Restaurant — garnered nationwide attention, thanks to the Food Network and celebrity Chef Robert Irvine.

Irvine filmed an episode of his Food Network show "Restaurant: Impossible" at J's that aired in April.

When the J's crew opened back up for business after the show was filmed, they had new decor, new murals, some outstanding new menu items and "a whole new attitude," owner Louis Fouquet said.

"With this new stuff we have here, we are going to be very successful," Fouquet said.

"It was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," long-time J's employee Elizabeth McIntosh said. "It was exciting — it was a rollercoaster of emotion."

In other top stories from January, locals Elise Deano and Kay Kelly started the Hancock House Floats contest in order to make up for the cancellation of most Mardi Gras parades due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"People here were so sad over Nereids being canceled and Seahorse being canceled and all that stuff," Ruth's Roots founder Elise Deano said, so she and Kay Kell started the Hancock House Floats Facebook page and contest, offering prizes to Hancock county residents for the best Mardi Gras decorations. They partnered with The Arts, Hancock County and multiple local businesses and donors to offer prizes for the best decorated "house floats."

IN FEBRUARY:

On Feb. 1, 2021, Lieutenant Michael Boutte with the Hancock County Sheriff's Office was shot and killed when he responded to a disturbance call in the Necaie Community."Lt. Boutte was an outstanding deputy, who loved his job and was loved by those he worked with," Hancock Sheriff Ricky Adam said in a press release.

Boutte was an eight-year law enforcement veteran and veteran of the United States Air Force, where he served in Operation Desert Storm, Adam said. Boutte later attended the United States Marine Corps Police Academy and served in the reserves in New Orleans.

"During his time with the Hancock County Sheriff's Office, Boutte was not only a leader to his people, but was awarded the Life Saving Medal for saving a child's life and was credited with spearheading National Crime Night Out and initiating the Silver Alert Database for the City of Diamondhead," according to the statement.

"The Hancock County Sheriff's Office suffered a huge loss today," Adam said. "Mike was an incredible deputy and more so a fine person. He was a mentor to our younger deputies and I know he will be greatly missed by his peers. You never saw him without a smile or a positive attitude. I can't begin to describe the heart break we are all experiencing right now. My thoughts, prayers and heart go out to his family and loved ones."

Another deputy who arrived at the scene exchanged gunfire with the suspect, Joseph Rohrbacker, 30, wounding him. Deputies called in two Life Flight helicopters Monday to airlift both men to New Orleans, and officers from multiple law enforcement agencies arrived on the scene.

Rohrbacker recovered from his injuries, and pled not guilty to first-degree murder for Boutte's death. He remains in custody while awaiting trial. If convicted, he could face the death penalty.

Last week, board members and staff of the Waveland LiLi Stahler-Murphy Ground Zero Hurricane Museum celebrated the installation of a new lighted sign.

Supers hear from non-profit about "mobile food pantry"

Zachary Fillhart, with the non-profit Pneuma — Winds of Hope, Inc., on Monday told the Hancock County Board of Supervisors that over the past year, the organization has been working with the King's Kitchen to start a "mobile food pantry" to address food insecurity in Hancock County.

The idea, he said, is that would it be a “community based, county wide remote food pantry system” with “weatherproof cabinets that are going to be placed around the county at different locations.”

Fillhart told the board that he is unsure of what type of licensing or approval is needed to do this.

As far as placement, Fillhart said Pneuma is working with Excel by 5 and the Mississippi State University Extension Office to identify areas, which could include next to the county’s libraries or emergency shelters.

“They would be completely stocked by our organization and the King’s Kitchen,” he said. “We’re also working with Stanislaus and OLA and a couple of other churches to help keep them stocked up. Ideally some community involvement will eventually be established for locals to help.”

Fillhart said that the food boxes would be filled with dry goods only and that the organization would check the boxes at least twice a week to make sure they are stocked.

Board attorney Gary Yarborough said that the organization would have to go through the county’s building office to apply for vendor permits and the locations inside city limits would be handled by the respective cities.

As far as placing the boxes by the county’s emergency shelters, Yarborough said that the board would have to discuss that with county EMA director Brain Adam.

County Administrator Eddie Favre also suggested that Fillhart get in touch with the Hancock County Food Pantry to coordinate, instead of one competing with the other for the donations.

The board took no official action on the matter, but will discuss with Adam. Yarborough said he will research the county’s “food bank authority.”

In other action:

The board voted to appoint District 4 Supervisor Scotty Adam as board president and District 3 Supervisor Kodie Koenenn as vice-president for 2022.

The board also re-appointed the following for 2022: Eddie Favre as county administrator; Gary Yarborough as board attorney; Vic Johnson as county road manager; Geoff Clemens as county engineer; Nancy Kelly as county comptroller; Brian Adam as county EMA director; and all current county employees to their current positions and with their current salaries.

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 18 at 9 a.m.

Ave, which would make it more visible to motorists.

In 2020, the museum was dedicated to LiLi’s memory, who was instrumental in opening the museum.

Museum board president Bernie Cullen said she is “glad the sign is up.”

“The museum staff and the volunteers and the board are just so thankful to Donald Murphy for doing such a wonderful job of getting our new permanent sign with all the light,” she said. “He keeps doing things to honor LiLi and her memory. We’re just appreciative that he does all these wonderful things for our museum.”

On Jan. 7, the museum will be opening its first temporary exhibit, “Secret Coast Pascagoula to Pontchartrain.”

J. Michael Dumoulin “highlights the relaxed culture and beach setting unique to Mississippi’s three coastal counties.”

The exhibit, which will run from Jan. 7 through April 1, features 15 original illustrations and quotes from Dumoulin’s book, “Balanced on a Moment.”

According to his biography, Dumoulin is a retired Air Force officer and NASA civil servant. He is a community volunteer and serves on many boards. He also holds degrees in graphics, advertising, and public relations and has authored nine books, illustrating six of them.

The Waveland LiLi Stahler-Murphy Hurricane Museum is housed in a historic building built in 1927, which once housed Waveland Elementary School. The building is city-owned and was the only building left standing on Coleman Avenue after Hurricane Karina. It is on the National Historic Registry.

The museum is located at 335 Coleman Ave. and is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Kartsyn Altese, junior golfer from Diamondhead, MS named youngest champion ever of the Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial

Photo submitted
Kartsyn Altese of Diamondhead was named the youngest champion ever of the Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial.
SEA COAST ECHO

Avondale, La. — Eighty-four top-ranked junior golfers from across the nation and world competed in the 2021 Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial, held on December 28-29. TPC Louisiana, home of the PGA TOUR’s Zurich Classic of New Orleans, was the host facility for the event. Participants from twelve states, as well as five international players from Canada and Venezuela, were put to the test with windy conditions and a challenging course. Karstyn Altese of Diamondhead, Ms. is the 2021 Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore

Memorial Champion in the Girls 13-18 Division. Altese, the youngest winner in the tournament’s history at age 12, overcame fierce competition from Ashleen Kaur of Cypress, Tx and Morgan Guepet of New Orleans, La in a 3-way playoff. Altese’s par on the first playoff hole sealed the victory.
Altese spoke about the work it took to get here and how she was able to come away with the victory.
“I had a fun time playing in the Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial! I was able to win with rounds of 75, 72 for a two-day total of +3. I was proud to secure my spot in a 3-way play-off with a very strong field. I have been working hard on my game with my team of coaches at the Golf Academy of Diamondhead. Having to adjust to the wind made it challenging for everyone. This tournament was a great experience. I was proud to be in the field of such a prestigious event and to finish on top is a huge honor. It was really neat to be able to win the play off with my parents, grandparents, sister, and golf family there to cheer me on.”

Ethan Dial of Shreveport, La is the 2021 Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial Champion in the Boys 13-18 Division. He posted impressive scores of 70-72, but had to battle Michael Crocker of Mobile, Al in a four-hole playoff to secure the title.
Dial commented about how he stayed focused and consistent amid the competition.
“My favorite shot was the eagle putt I made on 18. It was tough conditions, but everyone had to play in it, I just had to keep plugging along. Had to go into a 4-hole playoff but just kept my head down and did not worry about what my opponent was doing, just played my own game.”
Tied for second in the Girls 13-18 Division was Ashleen Kaur of Cypress, Tx (74,73) and Morgan Guepet of New Orleans, La (74,73).
Second place in the Boys 13-18 Division went to Michael Crocker of Mobile, Al (71,71), and third place to Will Hennessee of Tulsa, Ok (72,72).
Allstate Sugar Bowl is the presenting sponsor of the 36-hole event. The 88th Allstate Sugar Bowl Football Classic is scheduled to be played on Saturday, January 1, as No. 7 Baylor and No. 8 Ole Miss face off in the Caesars Superdome. While the Sugar Bowl is well-known as one of the premier college football bowl games, it has also been a key part of the local sports scene by hosting and sponsoring events in a wide-range of sports since its inception in 1934. Through these efforts, the organization supports and honors thousands of student-athletes each year, while injecting over $2.7 billion into the local economy in the last decade.

The tournament is named in honor of Tommy Moore, who was the most accomplished junior golfer to ever emerge from the New Orleans area. In 1980, Tommy was ranked #1 in the Golf Digest Junior World Rankings and went on to have a decorated collegiate career at Oklahoma State University where he was an All-American, National Champion, and Academic All-American. After playing on the PGA TOUR for three seasons, Tommy Moore’s life was cut short at the young age of 35 due to a rare blood disease. In his memory, the Kelly Gibson Foundation is proud to partner with the Allstate Sugar Bowl to host a national event that recognizes the impact Tommy made on junior golf and the New Orleans community. This is the 11th year that the Kelly Gibson Foundation has produced the Allstate Sugar Bowl Tommy Moore Memorial.

The Kelly Gibson Foundation was founded as Feed the Relief, Inc. by Kelly and Elizabeth Gibson in September of 2005 with the idea of providing necessary support for the front line first responders to Hurricane Katrina. In 2010, Feed the Relief, a 501(c)3 corporation, changed its name to the Kelly Gibson Foundation, and expanded its scope to enrich the lives of children through athletics. Their mission is to provide support to military personnel and first responders, with a focus on youth athletics. For more information, please visit www.kellygibsonfoundation.org.

St. Stanislaus students ‘grow’ oysters, help replenish Coastal reefs

SEA COAST ECHO

How does your garden grow? St. Stanislaus students are working on a garden that grows in the Mississippi Sound — an oyster garden, to be exact.

St. Stanislaus is among more than 50 locations in the state — and more than 1,000 across the country — where people “garden” oysters to help build reefs and replenish the oyster population in the state. The reefs also provide habitats for fish, shrimp and crabs, and help protect shorelines.

The project was made possible by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant.

Oysters are key to the health of the Gulf Coast ecosystem. A single oyster can filter as much as 25 to 50 gallons of water per day, according to the Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program.

Last June, St. Stanislaus Marine Science interns loaded wire cages full of oyster shells with “spat” — or oyster larvae — attached, and placed them into the water by the school’s pier.

From June through November, the students pulled the “oyster gardens” from the water every week to 10 days to clean off any algae or seaweed; clear out any crabs or other flora or fauna that might have found their way into the cages; and keep the oysters from growing through the wires.

Once the oyster spat grows to adulthood, they can be transplanted to the reef.

Heavy rain this past spring and summer lowered the salinity of the Mississippi Sound, making it tougher for baby oysters to grow, but last week the SSC Marine Science Interns helped the Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program pick up 272 oysters all across the Coast, bringing the total number of oysters planted this year to 5,712.

The Sea Grant program began in 2001 in Alabama as a Master’s degree thesis. It was modeled on an oyster gardening program that began in the late 1990s around Chesapeake Bay, where oyster harvests had severely dropped over a few years.

The Last Golden Girl

The world truly lost one of its greatest assets on New Year’s Eve with the passing of Betty White. She was 99 years old, mere weeks away from turning 100 on Jan. 17.

In a cartoon honoring the television legend by Mississippi cartoonist Marshall Ramsey, he quotes, “It says so much about your life and legacy if people think you died too soon at 99.”

When I heard the news, it felt like a punch to the stomach. No, I didn’t know Betty White personally, but since before I was 10 years old, she — along with the other golden girls — has been a constant presence in my life.

I was first introduced to the girls when I was just a youngster. “The Golden Girls” show first aired in 1985 when I was three years old and ran until May of 1992. Now, since my parents considered me too young to watch the show in the late ‘80s and early ‘90s, they wouldn’t let me watch it at our house.

Well, since I really wanted to watch the show, on Saturday nights, I would walk over to our neighbor’s house where my Memaw, as we called her, would pretty much let me do anything I wanted to do. She was in her late 80s and about as sassy as they come. She absolutely loved giving my daddy a hard time. Oh, how I miss that wonderful lady, our family’s real life version of Sophia.

So, while I sipped on some flat root beer and ate some Little Debbie cakes, I became “friends” with Rose, Blanche, Dorothy, and Sophia. I also must mention Stan, because his appearances on the show are just pure golden, as well.

At my young age, I didn’t realize how groundbreaking a show it was, nor did I really understand a lot of the content, but I came to love the girls anyway. I think it’s because I’ve always been more drawn to the older crowd.

My great aunts and uncles were some of my favorite people to be around, as were my grandparents.

Plus, watching the Golden Girls with Memaw made me feel a bit rebellious. Nowadays, I almost always think of Memaw when I watch the show.

It’s a relationship that has stood the test of time. When I left for college, the Lifetime channel would always air the show. It comforted me and made me laugh when I was far away from home and my family.

It was then I started to realize just how funny the girls were and yet also realize how much the show

Hancock History: Antebellum Pearlington

HANCOCK HISTORY
BY James Keating M.D.

At one time in Hancock County history, the Pearl River was the only significant route into the wilderness of our county for settlers and supplies. The town of Pearlington is located about five miles above the mouth of the Pearl River. The water in the river at Pearlington is deep, about twenty-five feet. Hence, it became a suitable port for schooner commerce with New Orleans and Mobile. This article offers a collection of interesting snippets that capture the spirit of the story of this sometimes forgotten place called Pearlington.

European colonization of Mississippi and Louisiana was not very successful financially. France, England, and Spain did not attract a large, mobile emigrant population to New Orleans or the Gulf Coast before 1811. Conversely, after annexation of the Gulf Coast by President Madison in 1811, the economy of the Pearl River Valley and New Orleans under the auspices of the United States flourished in the nineteenth century because of the Great Migration, the injection of capital (banking and insurance), and the influx of merchants with entrepreneurial experience into the regional economy. Consequently, at the mouth of all the Gulf Coast rivers, small ports such as Pearlington and Gainesville, Mississippi evolved supporting sawmills, shipyards, brickyards, cotton gins, taverns, and kilns producing navel stores (turpentine, tar, pitch, resin), and charcoal. Naval stores originated in the South producing products for the navies of wooden ships and helped support the southern economy for hundreds of years.

Nevertheless, at the turn of the nineteenth century, only a few settlers had populated the Pearl River Valley basin. The American Magistrate at Fort Stoddard (Mobile), Ephraim Kirby, reported to President Thomas Jefferson in 1804 “...that only the establishment of American rule could end the economic depression of the area wrought by Spanish control.” Kirby estimated that only about thirty families lived along the lower Pearl River. By 1812 almost all the land on the Mississippi side of the river had been granted to owners by earlier French, English, and Spanish governments. These settlers were insecure about the validity of their land titles. In addition, the region was lawless and a band of pirates made their head quarters in the location that would one day become the town of Gainesville.

It became apparent to

Managing for Antler Production: Part 3

Guest Column
By James Cummins

A buck’s potential for antler development is contained within his genetic material. In other words, his antler potential is determined by the combination of DNA from both his sire and dam. The buck’s environment, or quality of his habitat, and his age affect the physical expression of his genetic potential for antler development.

Genetic potential for antler development is only a management concern if you are involved in selective harvest of bucks. Selective harvest decisions can be used to manipulate the “genetic composition” or the “standing crop” of a population.

Management for “genetic composition” of the population involves altering gene frequencies in a breeding population such that there is an increase in genetic potential to grow larger antlers. Genetic composition can be manipulated only if you can judge the genetic potential of bucks and then increase the reproductive success of the superior animals. These are significant challenges under any management scenario.

Management of the “standing crop” of a population can provide both positive and negative effects, depending on the approach to selective harvest. Standing crop can be manipulated to improve antler development of surviving bucks if you have the luxury of selectively removing “inferior” animals. Standing crop can be managed effectively only if you can evaluate future antler development based on current antler development. A hunter must be able to accurately judge antler development within age classes and then selectively harvest inferior animals.

Nutritional factors which affect the initiation of pedicle growth during a buck’s first winter and antler growth during subsequent spring and summer will affect the expression of a young buck’s genetic potential for antler development. For example, the negative effect of a late birth date on antler development was documented at the Mississippi State University deer pens. Antler scores of bucks born in September to October were only about 30% as high as bucks born in June at 1 year of age and about 80% as high at 2 years of age. The disparity in antler size due to birth date disappeared as the bucks matured, but the pattern was present for 4 years. These results indicate that late born fawns may “catch up” to early born fawns if they survive to adulthood.

In summary, age, nutrition, and genetics significantly influence antler development of white-tailed deer. Taken individually, each of these factors has clear impacts on antler growth. Antler development increases with age up to a maximum at 5 to 7 years of age. Nutritional deficits can negatively impact pedicle development in fawns and growth of antlers in all age classes. When possible, nutrition, age, and genetic considerations should be incorporated into management programs. However, management emphasis should be placed first on addressing the most significant limiting factors. The factors most likely to be limiting antler production in Southeastern states are nutrition and buck age distribution. Placing management emphasis on providing adequate nutrition and promoting survival of bucks to older age classes generally produces the most cost-effective results.

Bay man, three others die after shooting at Gulfport NYE party

BY STACEY CATO
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

A Bay St. Louis man is one of four people and several others injured after gunshots rang out at a Gulfport New Year’s Eve house party. According to Harrison County Coroner Brian Switzer, just before midnight, authorities received a report of a shooting at a home on Lewis Avenue in Gulfport. A total of seven people, Switzer said, had been injured in the shooting after an apparent altercation occurred just as partygoers began leaving the New Year’s Eve bash. Three people were dead, one person was in critical condition and three others were injured after the gunshots rang out. Aubrey Lewis, 22, of Bay St. Louis was transported to Singing River Gulfport Hospital, suffering from a single gunshot wound. He later died in surgery. Corey Dubose, 23, of D’Iberville and Sedrick McCord, 28, of Gulfport were both taken to Gulfport Memorial Hospital where they succumbed to their injuries. Another victim, 52-year-old Nathaniel Harris, died on Sunday, Switzer said, and others were left injured. In total, six men and one woman were shot. Gulfport police have asked for witnesses to come forward. Anyone with information in the case is asked to contact the Gulfport Police Department at 228-868-5959 or Crime Stoppers at 1-877-787-5898. No arrests had been made as of press time on Tuesday.

also focused on some serious issues such as AIDS, dementia, homosexuality, sexual harassment, age discrimination, and so much more. During my teen years, I also discovered “The Mary Tyler Moore Show” and, to my delight, was introduced to Betty White’s portrayal of the perky Sue Ann Nivens. That show is one of my favorites and I had the biggest crush on Mr. Grant. “The Golden Girls” is still a routine part of my life. I watch it almost every night before bedtime. I can even recite some of the lines from the majority of the episodes and even tell you what episode you’re watching if you just tell me one line. My sister and I play that game a lot. She is a golden girls fan, as well. And you know what, even though I’ve heard the jokes over and over again, I still burst out laughing. And during the more tender moments, I still cry like it’s the first time I’ve seen it. As soon as I hear the theme song, I get goosebumps and instantly feel better. It’s more than just a television show to me and so many others. The girls have provided so much comfort and laughter when the world feels crummy. They truly are my friends in a way. And in Betty White’s case, she was a friend to many in real life. Months ago, I watched the documentary “Betty White: First Lady of Television” on Netflix, I learned so much more about her earlier work in television and her advocacy for equality. During the 1950s, she featured a black dancer by the name of Arthur Duncan on “The Betty White Show.” She was encouraged to take him off the show, after several stations in the south declined to air the show because of Duncan’s participation.

Her response, “I’m sorry, but he stays... Live with it!” and gave Duncan more airtime. A perfect response, I say. About 11 years ago, in an interview White shared her thoughts on gay marriage. “I don’t care who anybody sleeps with. If a couple have been together all that time — and there are gay relationships that are more solid than some heterosexual ones — I think it’s fine if they want to get married. I don’t know how people can get so anti-something. Mind your own business, take care of your affairs, and don’t worry about other people so much.” Again, another perfect response, I say. Not only did she stand up for human rights, but she was a devoted animal rights activist as well. “It is so embedded in me,” she said, according to Smithsonian magazine. “Both my mother and father were tremendous animal lovers. They imbued in me the fact that, to me, there isn’t an animal on the planet that I don’t find fascinating and want to learn more about.” A simple Google search and one can learn so much more about the incredible life she led. However, despite all of her many, many successes, she remained so humble. During most of her award acceptance speeches, she always thanked the fans and the showbiz industry itself for her 60-plus years in the business. I’ve never been of the opinion that one has to intimately know someone in order to grieve his or her passing. Betty White and the other girls have been a part of of my life for the past 30 years. And they don’t make shows like “The Golden Girls” anymore either. Nor do they make shows like “The Mary Tyler Moore Show”, “Sanford and Son”, “Maude,” etc. One of the things these shows have in common is that they stand the test of time. The acting, writing, and comedic timing is just brilliant. And Betty White’s real life personality makes her a great role model. A way better role model than any televangelist I’ve ever seen. You know the ones, they peddle Bible verses, books, and hollow quotes so people will send them money to pad their lavish and hypocritical lifestyles. There was something special about Betty White. I believe the legacy she leaves behind will be remembered for decades to come. I hope that we all can remember to do something nice for someone each day and also remember the importance of taking of the animals of this Earth. For me, “The Golden Girls” will always be my port in the storm. And I think it’s healthy to have those escapes, which is what the show provides me. And, no, I’m not one of those people who can’t differentiate between reality and fiction. (And my word, do we have way too many of those that can’t running around these days). When I heard the news on Friday, I imagined a reunion that might have included a cheesecake and several excited noises from all the animals she helped over the years. Thank you for being a friend, Betty White. Thanks for the memories of being a rebellious sort of youth and spending time with my Memaw; thanks for comforting me during the tough college years; and thanks for using your platform to fight for the rights of people and animals. “It’s your outlook on life that counts. If you take yourself lightly and don’t take yourself too seriously, pretty soon you can find the humor in our everyday lives. And sometimes, it can be a lifesaver,” — Betty White. all that annexation was inevitable to end the chaos in this disputed territory. Accordingly, in 1811 President Madison annexed the Mississippi Gulf Coast below the thirty-first parallel. Then, Governor W.C.C. Claiborne sent Dr. William “Fat Doctor” Flood to the coast to establish American sovereignty there. On January 9, 1811, Dr. Flood, a Louisiana planter and physician, docked the sloop, “Alligator,” in Pearlington and appointed Simon Favre Justice of the Peace for the newly formed Biloxi Parish. This area later became the Hancock County of the U.S. Mississippi Territory.

Simon Favre (1760-1813) was a very interesting character in this story and an earlier resident of Pearlington. He was the grandson of a French emigrant, Jean Favre, Jr. (Faure). Simon was the official government Interpreter of the Indian Nations for France and Commandant of the Pearl River during Spanish rule. His father, Jean Claude Favre (1721-1782), acquired his twelve hundred acre tract as early as 1767, which Simon inherited and settled on shortly after his father’s death. Simon married Celeste Rochon (1777-1840) of Mobile, Alabama, in 1801. He approved numerous land grants along the Pearl River as Justice of the Peace. Simon was a prominent, educated planter who owned and operated schooners, raised cattle, and owned slaves. His diversified business interests included being an important middleman in the newly emerging cotton sector of the regional economy. Cotton was transported by flatboat down the Pearl River from upriver plantations or by wagon from local farms to “The Gin.” This cotton gin processed the cotton and was located one mile north of downtown Pearlington on Favre’s plantation called Favreport. From there it was transported across Lake Pontchartrain to New Orleans. Simon financed his multifaceted operations with loans from the banking sector in New Orleans. He died in 1813 in Mobile, but his gravesite is unknown. In our next column the formation of the town of Pearlington will be presented.

pandemic. The “oyster” was created by local artist Steve Barney, at MacPhaille’s request. Barney said the oyster was carved from a 4x8 block of styrofoam with a Sawzall knife. The Dave Mayley Band performed on the Silver Slipper stage in the middle of the street while the crowd looked to the oyster atop MacPhaille’s 200 North Beach Restaurant, waiting for the countdown to midnight, when the fireworks display began. The popular band Assumed Risk performed earlier in the evening. “It’s almost like a festival,” MacPhaille said. “It’s a free event and everybody that I heard — the businesses on the street, the hotel — were happy with the amount of people who came out. “We look forward to doing it again next year.”

Archbishop Desmond Tutu

By C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN.

C. Gerald Richardson, D. Min.

In recent days the world has learned of the passing of Archbishop Desmond Tutu of South Africa. This noble spiritual leader was a powerful voice for justice and equality in the face of racial strife in his home country. His life was a testament to love, courage, and integrity in the face of one of the world's greatest problems and sources of conflict in human history.

In our own part of the world, significantly but not totally, in the deep south, it is still common to hear the "N" word employed with derision and contempt. Poverty, lack of adequate housing, food insecurity, and other challenges often include a racial context. Many people continue to make choices about where they live, where they worship, and where and how they educate their children with racial considerations in mind.

It would be hard to imagine a more fundamentally spiritual issue than this. Most religious teaching contains a strong emphasis on inclusive relationships, acceptance of difference, and appreciation for cultures which are diverse. People have value regardless of their skin color, their background, or their cultural circumstance. Those who face struggles due to their economic situation, station in life, and racial identity are valued in our spiritual teachings just as much as those who enjoy a privileged status in society. In fact, if we take scripture seriously, a strong case can be made that they hold a special place of priority in the Judeo-Christian tradition. The story of the Exodus in the Hebrew scriptures as well as abundant examples in Christian scripture (see the magnificat in the Gospel of Luke, or the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew) all point to the value and importance of caring for "the least of these" among us. It is important to note that the term "the least" does not assign importance, but it does recognize those whose struggles and challenges are greater than most.

said that to choose neutrality in the face of injustice is to choose acceptance of it. In other words, it is never enough to simply stand by while injustice is evident. It is crucial to stand against it. That is what Archbishop Tutu did throughout his life, and he provides a powerful example and a lasting memory of that important truth.

What are the implications for the rest of us?

First of all, we are reminded that each of us carry responsibility for all of us. Living in blissful ignorance of the conditions of others is not a legitimate option if we seek to live an authentic life of love and concern. The ancient story of Cain and Able includes the question "Am I my brother's keeper?". Spiritual teaching across the ages answers in the affirmative.

It is also true that society in general benefits more from community than from isolation. We are better together. The value we place on one person impacts the welfare of all.

As we remember the influence of Archbishop Tutu may we give thanks for his life, but most importantly, may we learn from his example and seek to follow it.

MEET KENDRA.
This lovely, leggy gal is ready to be your best friend. Kendra is a 12 month old, female, Australian Shepherd mix. She is very sweet natured, and loves the company of other dogs, as well as people. She gives appreciative hugs and kisses in return for your affection, and she is lots of fun! She is very playful and loves romping-n-playing in our doggie exercise yard with her pals here at the shelter. A home with a fenced backyard would be ideal for Kendra, as well as an active family seeking a dog to join in their adventures. She would be a wonderful playmate for school aged kids, too. We are unsure yet if Kendra is house or crate trained, but she walks fairly well on a leash/harness.
If you are interested in meeting Kendra, please come by the shelter during our visiting hours, Mon-Fri 10am-3pm (Tues 12pm-3pm), or call our front desk at 228-466-4516 to schedule an appointment. Please bring your dog(s) and children along for the visit to ensure compatibility.

vision of the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office responded to an “inadvertent fire alarm” at Bay-Waveland Middle School. Deputies were then made aware that a student had a firearm in his/her possession, according to a release from the Bay-Waveland School District.

Deputies immediately secured the campus; identified the student involved; and located a handgun in his/her possession, the release states.

“During the investigation, deputies were alerted to another student that received a second handgun from the previously detained student, and they were able to immediately locate this second handgun which had been discarded in a trash can,” the release said.

BWSD School Board President Casey Favre said in the release that the situation was “handled all by the school and district administration working well with their law enforcement partners.”

IN MARCH:

Then-Hancock County Coroner Jim Faulk confirmed he was under investigation by the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics. Faulk said in late March that state and MBN agents executed at least two search warrants for the Hancock County Coroner’s Office — one at his home office and one at the county coroner’s office.

Faulk said at the time that at least four vehicles with multiple state and MBN agents made a surprise visit to his Bay St. Louis home, where he often works. Agents also produced a search warrant for the county office, which is also located in Bay St. Louis, Faulk said. Faulk said he felt personally attacked by the investigation and seizures, and denied any wrong-doing.

Faulk resigned in July, citing multiple health issues, and voters elected Jeff Hair to replace him in November.

Also in March, Waveland police probed the shooting death of a 14-year old boy.

“Officers were dispatched to the area of Gulfside Assembly and Beach Blvd. regarding a gunshot victim,” Waveland Police Chief Mike Prendergast said in a press release.

Upon arrival, officers began administering first aid to a 14-year-old male subject who had a gunshot wound to the torso area,” Prendergast said. “During the investigation, it was learned that the juvenile was traveling with three other people in a 2014 Dodge Ram. The victim was a passenger in the vehicle. Another passenger in the vehicle removed a handgun from the holster located on his person in an attempt to secure the weapon when the firearm discharged.”

He told police “that he was clearing the weapon and his hand slipped and the gun went off,” Prendergast said. “The driver was not aware of the passengers handling the gun until he heard the shot.”

Prendergast said the victim was transported to University Medical Center in New Orleans, “where he succumbed to his injuries.”

The victim was later identified as Christian Jones, a resident of Poplarville.

The case is still under investigation.

IN APRIL:

It was determined that the Bay St. Louis City Council would have at least one new face after the Republican primary election — in the Ward 4 race, challenger Kyle Lewis won over incumbent Councilman Larry J. Smith by 245 votes to 164, according to unofficial results.

“It’s very humbling to have this opportunity,” Lewis said Tuesday after the ballots were counted. “I feel very fortunate and I’d like to thank all the voters who supported my platform and goals for Ward 4 and the city of Bay St. Louis. I also want to thank Larry Smith for his years of service to the city, and thank him for running a good race.”

That left only the Ward 2 position in question, but in the June 8 general election, incumbent Councilman Eugene “Gene” Hoffman IV prevailed over former Councilwoman Wendy McDonald.

IN MAY:

A Gulfport man was killed in an early-morning shoot-out outside Third Base Lounge, located at 809 Hwy. 90. When Bay St. Louis police officers arrived on the scene, they located Jermaine Watts, 23, of Gulfport, who was suffering from multiple gunshot wounds, according to a press release issued by Bay P.D. Capt. of Operations Rachel Jewell.

Watts died at the scene, Jewell said, and “a warrant was issued for Joseph Haynes, a 33-year old” Pass Christian resident, “charging him with one count of murder.” Haynes was held on a $1 million bond. The case is still pending.

Also in May, police charged two Gulfport men for aggravated assault and robbery after numerous gunshots were fired throughout the streets of residential areas in both Waveland and Bay St. Louis in an apparent “drug deal gone bad.”

“The subjects fled the scene but were later captured and taken into custody,” Waveland Police Chief Mike Prendergast said in a press release.

Dayquan Perkins, 21, and Keith Cooper, 19, both of Gulfport were charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault manifesting in extreme indifference to human life, Prendergast said.

Multiple homes and vehicles were riddled with bullets as the incident occurred, but police said that no major injuries were reported.

The case is still pending.

IN JUNE:

Friends and family members gathered Saturday, June 26, at University Medical Center in New Orleans to bid farewell to Bay St. Louis native Cayce Seal.

Cayce -- the 28-year-old son of Bay St. Louis City Councilman Doug Seal and his wife Michelle -- was badly shocked in New Orleans Wednesday, June 23, working as an Entergy lineman.

At first, the family hoped and prayed he would recover, but his girlfriend Cassie Lassa-be posted on social media June 25 that, “This morning, we got news that crushed our hearts. It appears that Cayce had more significant cardiac and neurologic damage than we originally thought, and his chances of recovering have dwindled. He is resting at the moment and we ask that you please pray for his comfort and salvation. Cayce is preparing to give the gift of life so that he can continue to influence and impact others around him.

“Please know that the tremendous outpouring of support has made this journey a little more bearable. Much love from our entire family to each and every one of you.”

“Even in death, he is still giving,” Doug Seal posted on Saturday. “Cayce will be a donor of life for others. We are having a donor flag ceremony at 3 p.m.

“Today, as Cayce prepares to leave this world as a hero, giving the gift of life to others, we welcome friends and family to join us for the raising of his donor flag. This flag will continue to fly throughout Cayce’s surgery and signifies his final act of love, kindness, and giving — something our boy Cayce is known for and will always be remembered for.”

IN JULY:

A Hancock County grand jury has determined that there was no wrong-doing by Hancock jail staff in the July 2020 death of a female inmate.

Lauren Lindsey Darnell, 33, of Ocean Springs, was found dead in her cell on Saturday, July 25, 2020.

“After full and deliberate consideration of all the facts and circumstances leading up to” Darnell’s death “and the circumstances as they existed at the time,” according to a grand jury report issued Thursday, “the grand jury finds no criminal conduct on behalf of the corrections officers, jail medical staff or any other direct or subcontracted employee of the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office.”

The grand jury also determined that “no further action is warranted by this body.”

After Darnell’s death, the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office issued a press release that said “There appears to be no suspicious circumstances” around Darnell’s death, but said the matter had been turned over to the Mississippi Bureau of Investigation “out of an abundance of caution.”

Darnell was arrested in Hancock County four days before her death on Jackson County warrants for probation violation and contempt of court — failure to appear, jail records show.

Officers said at the time that Darnell had showed no signs of coronavirus when she was booked into the jail.

The Mississippi State Medical Examiner’s Office reportedly performed an autopsy, but the results have not been released publicly.

IN AUGUST:

While Pearlinton residents were busy dealing with flooding from Hurricane Ida, Hancock County deputies had to respond to the scene of a murder, which resulted in a stand-off and shoot-out that left the suspect dead, authorities say.

Sheriff’s officials said deputies responded by boat to a residence at Kelly Street where a man had been killed, and the male suspect exchanged gunfire with at least one of the deputies.

“Upon arrival, Hancock County deputies, while attempting to investigate the call for service, made contact with a subject in the residence,” according to a press release from Hancock Sheriff Ricky Adam’s office. “An officer involved shooting occurred that led to the shooting death of one subject. Deputies found a second deceased male in the residence. No deputies were hurt during the incident.”

The victim was later identified as George Hobart Shaw, age 65. The man who shot him was Martin Luther Bowman, III, age 80, authorities said. Bowman was also known in the neighborhood as “Capt. Foo” or simply “The Captain.” The men were apparently roommates.

Officers of the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office are investigating the murder.

IN SEPTEMBER:

A body recovered from a Hancock County bayou on Friday, Sept. 10, turned out to be a missing Biloxi man, and police arrested his son, charging him with first-degree murder. On Thursday, Sept. 9, the Biloxi Police Department asked the public’s assistance to locate Van Leigh Marske, 66, who had last been seen on Sept. 4. Marske’s body was found Friday Sept. 10, in the water near the Bayou Lacroix Bridge.

After the body was found, Biloxi police arrested Marske’s son, Noble V. Marske, 41, who was detained at the Harrison County Jail on a $1 million bond.

Anyone with information in the case is urged to contact the Biloxi Police Department Criminal Investigation Division (228) 435-6112, Biloxi Police Department Dispatch (228) 392-0641, Biloxi Police Criminal Intelligence Unit ciu@biloxi.ms.us, Mississippi Crime Stoppers (877) 787-5898, or submit a tip online at mscoastercrimestoppers.com.

IN OCTOBER:

The search for a missing Bay St. Louis woman had a happy ending — Barbara Bond Prater was found alive and well, police said.

It is a heartfelt pleasure for us to update that Barbara Prater has been located,” Police Chief Gary Ponthieux Jr. said in a press release Saturday evening. “She is being transported for a medical assessment, but is in good physical condition. Thank you for the thoughts, prayers and diligent efforts of our wonderful citizens and all those involved in the search and rescue efforts over the last several days.”

“Thank you to the Bay St Louis Police Department!” Prater’s sister, Kay Bond Horne, said on Facebook. “We are full of gratitude and humbled by the caring men and women of not only this department but the BSL Firemen as well. A special thank you to Investigator Rachel Jewell who delivered this great news to us and kept us informed every step of the way. God bless each of you for locating my sister!”

IN NOVEMBER:

In addition to celebrating her big win on the Food Network’s Halloween Baking Championship, Waveland resident Renee Loranger opened Sugar Pop Baking Co.

The California native moved to Waveland in 2000.

Loranger said baking wasn’t her first choice of career.

“I actually wanted to be an actress,” she said. “But I kind of fell into the job of baking and I just really liked it and picked it up really fast. It was a way for me to still be artistic. So I stuck with it and mostly self-taught. If I want to learn it, I look it up and figure out how to do it.”

Loranger said she began baking in California at grocery stores. When she moved to Waveland, she started working at Casino Magic — now Hollywood Casino — and built its baking program.

After Hurricane Katrina, the bakery program was closed and Loranger returned as a restaurant manager.

For season six of Food Network’s Halloween Baking Competition, Loranger said, she kept an eye on the network’s casting program.

She won second place that year.

For the seventh season, Loranger said, the network asked her back.

Loranger’s cake took home the $25,000 grand prize, which gave her the jumpstart she needed to open her own bakery inside Waveland’s LiLi Stahler-Murphy Ground Zero Hurricane Museum, located at 335 Coleman Ave..

Loranger said she always wanted to branch out on her own and “do my own thing.”

Loranger said she does take special orders such as cakes and cookies. People can order online or order in-person at the bakery, she said.

IN DECEMBER:

- Police use Narcan to save man from overdose death in Waveland parking lot — Both Waveland and Bay St. Louis police responded to the Choctaw Plaza in Waveland after witnesses reported a man had passed out in the parking lot. Waveland officers determined the man had overdosed, and saved his life using Narcan. Narcan — the brand name of the prescription drug Naloxone — is a medicine that rapidly reverses an opioid overdose. A person treated with Naloxone still has to have medical treatment, since the overdose symptoms would return once the Naloxone wears off.

Waveland Police Chief Mike Prendergast said officers have seen a sharp increase in drug overdoses in recent months.

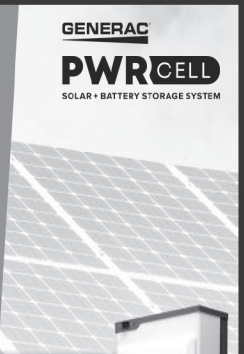

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency announced earlier this month that Harrison and Hancock counties have the highest number of overdose cases in the state, due in part to the prevalence of the use of the drug fentanyl. Drug dealers apparently mix fentanyl with other narcotics because it costs less, but is more potent and much more likely to result in overdose.

“My officers always carry the Narcan,” Prendergast said, “every last one of them. We’ve been using it a few times a month. Thank goodness we have the Narcan, because we’d have a lot more deaths than we’ve had.”

In other top stories from December, the Diamondhead Planning & Zoning Commission approved a developer’s plans to open a Taco Bell restaurant with the first double-drive through at any U.S. Taco Bell location; Alice Moseley Museum Executive Director Lonnie Falgout announced the traveling Vietnam Vets Memorial would begin its 2022 country-wide tour in Bay St. Louis; COVID-19 cases again spiked statewide just before Christmas and authorities asked people to avoid large gatherings; and Bay High grad Robert “Bob” M. Lauderdale was reunited with his class ring 50 years after he lost it.

Morale is infectious. If your work place is full of good morale, productivity often goes way up. It's up to the managers, presidents, owners to do their best to keep morale up.

Enter Kirk Edrington with Greenscape Brothers. Kirk, or "Kook" as we called him way back when, has done well with his company. He's also done well taking good care of his employees. He's brought his guys fishing with us the last couple of Years. It's his way of thanking them, for their hard work. We've had the pleasure of fishing these gentlemen the past two years. They all love to fish, and really enjoy themselves on our trips together. They take a lot of pride in their work too. Even while the boys were cranking in redfish, trout and flounder they were taking work calls, and discussing upcoming jobs. You can easily spot the fantastic work ethic in these guys. NO ONE left a mess anywhere. They were constantly on our guides, asking what they could do to help.

These guys hammered on some fish, but it isn't always about who

I challenge everyone out there, to make time, and take time to show appreciation to your work force. Take em to lunch, give em a bonus, or maybe even take them on a fishing trip. Give those hard working men and women who make your workplace better a token of your appreciation, for a JOB WELL DONE!
